VINCENT VAN DUYSSEN

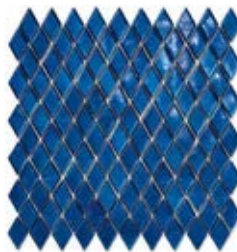

Belgian architect Vincent Van Duysen brought his signature minimal aesthetic to this kitchen in a duplex penthouse. A weekend home—located on the Belgian coast—its clean, white interiors reflect its purpose as a place to unwind. The open-plan layout has been set up to offer unhindered views of the sea from the living areas. Adjacent to the dining area, the kitchen faces the terrace at the back of the building. The palette chosen for the floors and furniture reflects the location—sand, sea and white cabins dotting the beach outside.

APPARATUS

Gabriel Hendifar and Jeremy Anderson, co-founders of Apparatus, the New York-based studio, designed their loft—set in an erstwhile industrial building in the Flatiron District—to reflect their singular aesthetic. The open-plan layout stretches from the kitchen, past the dining area and to the living space—each featuring Apparatus lighting and furniture paired with vintage pieces. Surrounding the brass-clad, Saint Laurent-marble-topped kitchen island, for example, are a set of 1950s barstools (pictured).

STEPHEN JAVENS & KERRY PHELAN

Architect Stephen Javens and designer Kerry Phelan, of Australian firm KPDO, designed this kitchen with four types of granite—Arabescato, Amazonite, Norwegian Rose and Viscount White. This includes the island, paired with 'Four Seasons' barstools by Ludwig Mies van der Rohe for Knoll Studio from Dedecce. Also on display are Memphis-style objects from the homeowner's own collection and a Pietro Russo 'Hubble Space' hanging lamp for Baxter from Criteria.

DAVID FLACK

Australian designer David Flack reimagined a 19th-century homestead in a nursery for thoroughbreds in northern Victoria. The open-plan kitchen features an 'Antique Brown' granite splashback and worktop from CDK Stone paired with 'Mater' high stools by Space Copenhagen from Cult, and lit with a 'Cloud XL 73' pendant by Apparatus from Criteria Collection. The 'Mosquito' ceramic sculpture is by Australian artist Clairy Laurence. The Perrin & Rowe fittings were acquired from The English Tapware Company.
